Not illustrated. 1873 Excerpt: ...some discussion arising from the opposition of a few delegates to the renomination of President Grant by the National Convention. These were, however, in a small minority, and, after the delegates had been chosen and electors nominated, the following platform was unanimously adopted, the delegates opposing the renomination of Grant having withdrawn from the convention: We, the Republicans of Kentucky, in convention assembled, declare--1. That we reaffirm our adherence to the Republican party, pledging ourselves to maintain them as the best safeguard of our liberties. We also reaffirm our adherence to the right of all American citizens--according to the Constitution--to exercise, without diminution or restriction, the elective franchise in all elections, national, State, or municipal, and hereby express our condemnation of the acts of the Democracy in this State in contravention of this principle. 2. To the people of Kentucky and of the nation we send congratulation upon the fulfilment of the promises given by the Republican party in National Convention assembled in 1868--resulting in the restoration to the Union of all the States--in giving equal rights to all men before the law--surrounding us with prosperity at home, and increased honor among all the nations of the civilized world. 3. We recognize with pride the beneficial achievements of the present Administration in the management of national affairs, in executing the wishes of the people as declared by law, in condemning and punishing corruption, and in relieving the industries of the country from grievous burdens thrust upon them. 4. To an extent beyond our most sanguine expectation, the Republican party has reduced the public debt, and at the same time appreciated to a high standard the national...
