Praise for Big C, little ta-ta: Ive wanted an optimistic book like this to give my patients who are simply overwhelmed with the cancer diagnosis. - Kelly Jeffcoat, Breast Health Navigator, Lexington Medical Center Riotous humor is the signature calling card of author Janet Kelleher. In Big C, little ta-ta, Jan delivers heart-warming stories with tickling wit that will make you laugh aloud with delight. Through her unique blending of prose, she shows feminine fortitude and joyfulness in the face of a life-altering disease. Shes a must-read author, one not to be missed! - Linda Joyce, Author of Bayou Born and Bayou Bound In Big C, little ta-ta, Jans stories of her battle with breast cancer are entertaining and thoughtful. Her turn-of-phrase and views on life remind me of the legendary Erma Bombecks eclectic prose, with a twist of Southern charm thrown in. This is the perfect gift book for that special someone on your list. - Dahlynn McKowen, Not Your Mothers Book creator and Chicken Soup for the Soul co-author Janet Kelleher takes on a terrifying subject, cancer, and body slams it to the ground with rolling-on-floor-laughing humor. Kelleher's skillful writing and her ability to find comedy amidst fear and pain - she's a Big-C survivor - is the mark of an extraordinary talent ... and a quiet determination not be undone by a fearsome disease. - Buzz Bernard, Author of Supercell, Plague, and Eyewall Big C, little ta-ta reminded me of my time through this experience. It just touched my heart so, and it made my heart sing. - Flo Johnson, retired teacher, breast cancer survivor
