

A Goose in Toulouse: And Other Culinary Adventures in France

The San Francisco Chronicle and Los Angeles Times bestseller -- now available in paperback. In France, you are what you eat, and no one knows this better than Mort Rosenblum. Now he sets off on a quest to find the essence of the country through its devotion to food. Rosenblum writes lyrically about truffle hunters, oyster rustlers, snail ranchers, and legendary vintners; he presides over food fights, from the McDonalds wars to the impassioned defense of a goose in Toulouse. Through it all, he investigates what is behind the simple concept, I eat; therefore I'm French.
