

Loss of a Friend

Just when you think you and your friends are invincible to the world and nothing could ever go wrong, you are hit with the shock of a lifetime. On Nov. 23, 1998, one of your friends is involved in an accident that takes his life. What happens now? This is a true story about a group of friends as they experience a tragedy they never thought could come. Brian tells how he and his friends were told of the news and how he dealt with the situation. Brian also tells of how this experience has changed his life forever. There are accounts from Georges family and friends that relate how they dealt with the situation as well. This is not a how-to cope book, but rather a book that allows readers to relate their own experiences with those of Brian and his friends. Brian first met George during his freshman year of high school, and they were friends ever since. Brian attended Northern Arizona University, where he graduated in 2001 with a degree in journalism. He dedicated the majority of his time at school writing this book, wanting the world to know just how great of a loss he and his friends suffered.
