

Widow Smith of Spences Bridge

Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and traveled with her orchardist husband, John, to the south western British Columbia community of Spences Bridge. Thirty-year-old Jessie Ann's strict Presbyterian upbringing and her training as a teacher, musician and banker did little to prepare her for the exciting life she was about to lead as a pioneer in British Columbia's fledgling ranching and fruit industry. Her story, a love story with an historical twist, begins with her childhood in Scotland and follows her by ship across the Atlantic and by rail across the U.S.A. to the west coast of British Columbia. Her introduction to Canada includes a work train trip through the Fraser Canyon on the then under construction Canadian Pacific Railway. The young couple initially settled at Spences Bridge where John Smith worked for orchardist, John Murray. However, after an attempt at her husband's life, they left The Bridge for a harsh decade of homesteading in an upland valley south of Merritt. In 1897, after the death of John Smith's former employer, the family returned to purchase and rebuild the ailing Spences Bridge orchard. John Smith died in 1905, partly as the result of an earlier Granite Creek mining accident. Jessie Ann Smith and her children continued working the Spences Bridge orchard. For nearly a decade their Grimes Golden apples won top honors in shows in Canada, the U.S.A. and England. King Edward VII sought the apples of the Widow Smith of Spences Bridge at a London Horticultural Show in 1909. The King? Ay, ay - no less than he, None other than His Majesty; His car already comes to stand At Islington's exhibit grand, Ingenuous to a high degree - I've come, he says most graciously, Those luscious Golden Grimes to see Of Widow Smiths from fair B.C. With dainty taste and polished mien He deems them fitting for the Queen. Forthwith he executes command That they be sent to Buckingham. With the aid of three of her granddaughters, Jessie Ann Smith began writing her life story in the mid-1930s. Half a century later, Murphy Shewchuk was approached by granddaughter Audrey Ward to help complete the book and it was first published in 1989. It has now been reprinted twice. The latest reprint, in July, 1998, includes corrections on an addendum on the inside back cover.

Widow Smith of Spences Bridge par Smith, Jessie Ann - Abebooks Synopsis : Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and traveled with her orchardist husband, John, to the south western British Columbia Widow Smith of Spences Bridge - Jessie Ann Smith, Murphy Cisco to Spences Bridge was particularly heavy work, with the grade benched Jessie Ann Smith, Widow Smith of Spences Bridge according to the title of her Heritage Apples: A New Sensation - Google Books Result Widow Smith of Spences Bridge. Book. Vanishing British Columbia - Google Books Result 0929069005 128 pages. Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and followed her orchardist husband, John, to the British Columbia Widow Smith - Explore Gold Country At the junction of the Nicola and Thompson Rivers, Spences Bridge boasts the the acacia trees planted in the 1800s or see the original Widow Smith house. Widow Smith of Spences Bridge par Smith, Jessie Ann - Abebooks Widow Smith of Spences Bridge by Jessie Ann Smith J. Meryl Campbell Audrey Ward and a great selection of similar Used, New and Collectible Books The Widow Smith of Spences Bridge Facebook Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and traveled with her orchardist husband, John, to the south western British Columbia community Landslide 110th Anniversary August 13, 2015 - Cooks Ferry Indian : Widow Smith of Spences Bridge: Softcover. Sound & good copy, light to moderate rubbing/edgewear to wraps. Widow Smith of Spences Bridge: Jessie Ann Smith, J - S - Widow Smith of Spences Bridge by Jessie Ann Smith as told to J. Meryl Campbell & Audrey Ward edited by Murphy Orlando Shewchuk. Carving the Western Path: By River, Rail, and Road Through B.C.s - Google Books Result I have read the Widow Smith of Spences Bridge several times. I was wondering where the Voghs Valley ranch is located. Looked up on Widow Smith of Spences Bridge by Smith, Jessie Ann Campbell, J Synopsis: Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and traveled with her orchardist husband, John, to the south western British Columbia none Book cover of Widow Smith of Spences Bridge Widow Smith of Spences Bridge. Smith, Jessie Ann, 1853-1946. Book, 1989. 128 p. : Reference only. 1 copy. Acacia Grove R.V. Park & Cabins Autobiography of Jessie Ann Smith who was born in Gartly, Aberdeenshire, Jessie died 7 February 1946 in Spences Bridge, B.C., Canada. to Spences Bridge and celebrates. Grimes Golden apples. John Smith, a novice orchardist, on an arduous Widow Smith of Spences Bridge. Merritt, BC: Widow Smith of Spences Bridge, Smith, Jessie Ann 0929069005 book exchange - information on area attractions : Located in beautiful historic Spences Bridge , British Columbia , Canada , on the Gold Rush Trail to North Widow Smith of Spences Bridge - Jessie Ann Smith J. Meryl Widow Smith of Spences Bridge. Merritt, BC: Shewchuk, Sonotek Publishing. Simonsen, Bjorn O., Sandra

Peacock, James Haggerty, Jonathan Sector and Widow Smith Of Spences Bridge Read Download PDF/Audiobook Spences. Bridge, BC. VIEW SHAWNIKEN (ARTHURS SEAT) MOUNTAIN BEFORE THE Excerpt from the Widow Smith of Spences Bridge. Spences Bridge - New Pathways to Gold neither the plaque nor the background research paper make the connection to the Smith or Morens families, this house or Widow Smiths in Spences Bridge.
Apple growers--British Columbia--Spences Bridge Region--Biography. Widow Smith. Site Identification. Nearest Community: Spences Bridge, B.C.. Geocache Location: N 5025.470. W 12120.438. Altitude: 243m/797ft. Ownership:.
The Spences Bridge-Merritt-Ashcroft Loop - BC Adventure Buy Widow Smith of Spences Bridge on ? FREE SHIPPING on qualified orders. The Smiths - Explore Gold Country The information for this article was taken from excerpts of the book Widow Smith of Spences Bridge, by Jessie Anne Smith, as told to J. Meryl Widow Smith of Spences Bridge: Jessie Ann Smith, J - In February 1884, Jessie Ann Smith prepared to leave her % home in They were headed to Spences Bridge, part of British Columbias dry belt, where today, Now the Widow Smith, Jessie Ann, and her children set about maintaining the Gearing-Edge: The Widow Smith of Spences Bridge - Merritt Herald Synopsis : Newly-wed Jessie Ann Smith left Scotland in February, 1884, and traveled with her orchardist husband, John, to the south western British Columbia Vanishing B.C. Orchard near Spences Bridge & Smith/Murray We were heading north on Highway 1 to Spences Bridge, 36 km (23 miles) away, collection of characters, including a pioneer by the name of Widow Smith. Widow Smith of Spences Bridge - City of Vancouver Archives Widow Smith of Spences Bridge, Smith, Jessie Ann 0929069005 in Books, Magazines, Textbooks eBay. Widow Smith of Spences Bridge de
Smith, Jessie Ann Campbell, J